We announce this edition, because the alterations and additions are so considerable, that it is rendered almost a new work," British Cruic, July 1801. "The examples which Mr. Murray has here selected, and the judicious reflections which accompany them, are such as can scarcely fail to make the best impressions, and to produce the best effects, on all who read them with attention. IMPORTANT, And very late from England.

Yesterday arrived at this port, the ship Phillipsburg, Leffingwell, from Liverpool and the British Packet, Princess Amelia, from Falmouth; the former left Liverpool on the 27th of Nov. and Cork on the 12th of December, and the latter sailed from Falmouth on the 8th of December, & from Bermuda the 14th inst.

By these arrivals the editors of the New York Gazette have received regular files of London, and Cork papers, to the 6th and 8th ult. a month later than our former newspaper advices. It will be seen by the extracts that follow that from the 4th to the 13th of November, there had been several most bloody and sanguinary battles between the patriotic troops of Spain, and the French army under marshal Ney, who, it seems, ultimately obliged Gen. Blakes troops to retreat. But we find that on the 24th, Blake attacked Nevs army, passed the Ebro, took Caparossa, obliging the French army to retreat. Upon the whole the last news received in England from Spain, gave fresh hopes that the Patriots would ultimately succeed in their glorious struggle. On the 7th ult. the day before the British Packet sailed, two fine regiments of British cavalry, left Falmouth for Spain. This looks very much like despairing.

Bonaparte again threatens to invade England, while her troops are in Spain.

One of our London papers state a report. that the Lord Hobart Packet brought out 15 millions of dollars as a present from the U. S. to the Spanish patriois! It was disbelieved on the ground that we could not do an act that would offend Bonaparte.

We find nothing in the London papers respecting America, except copious extracts from our papers.

Mr. Purviance, passenger in the Phillipsburg, is the bearer of dispatches from Mr.

The fate of sir Hew Dalrymple was not decided, his trial was still progressing.

THE EXTRACTS.

LONDON, Dec. 2. It was on Wednesday stated at Lloyd's that intelligence had been received of Bonaparte's arrival at Madrid, on the 17th ultime: but from what quarter, or by what means, such a statement was brought to the Coffee House, we could not ascertain.

Mr. Munro, one of the King's messengers, who arrived yesterday with the Corunna mail, and brought dispatches from Lord William Bentinck, and Mr. Frere. brought also despatches from generals Boderick and Leith, having passed along the line of March, of sir David Baird's army. The accounts received by government were given in substance in a bulletin-

BULLETIN. "It appears by despatches received from Corunna, dated the 23d, and from San Vincente de la Barquera, dated the 10th ult. that the account of general Blake being defeated is confirmed. He was engaged in continual actions from the 4th till the 13th. On the 11th the Asturians having been worsted on the left, the French got possession of a height which covered the road on which they retreated, and they were thrown into great confusion, and general Blake retired to Reynosa; but a French column appearing upon this road from Burgos, he remand, and they would soon be in a state to advance again. "The Prench had occupied St. Andero and Santona—the former on the 16th, and the latter on the 20th. But by the exertions of general Leith, all the provisions, ammunitions, and stores sent by his country treated by Solo to San Vincente de la Bar-quera. There, upon the 12th, he had collected near 20,000 of his troops, and the marquis de la Romana had taken the com-had been removed. " It appears that part of the army at Estremadura had been defeated near Burgos by the French; but there are no accounts of their having advanced beyond it. Gen. Moore arrived on the 10th at Salamanca-General Baird was at Astorga."

To this we add, on the credit however, of private letters, that the French corps that advanced to Valladolid had afterwards retreated to Burgos. LATER ACCOUNTS.

The Favorite cutter has arrived at Plymouth, from the coast of Spain. The Bonne Citoyenne, captain Thompson, arrived yesterday at Portsmouth. Captain Thompson has since reached town. He left Corunna on the 26th ult and brings accounts from general Blake's army to the 24th .-The substance of the intelligence by the Bonne Citoyenne, will be found in the subjoined letter:

" Portsmouth, Dec. 1. "This afternoon arrived here the Lonne Citoyenne, captain Thompson, with despatches from Corunna, from whence the Bonne Citoyenne sailed on Saturday last the 26th ult. Captain Thompson brings despatches from general Blake's army, which continued retreating, but bravely defending every inch of ground, till the 24th, when general Blake made a firm stand and repelled his enemies, numerous as tuey were.-After this action general Blake's force remained 25,000 strong. This we must think very goods news; but, we regret to hear that Romana's force, having made some mistake in the route, fell in with the enemy' and having slaughtered an immense number of the enemy, he was at length overpowered and cut in pieces. We regret still more to learn, that Bonaparte's emissaries had too well succeeded in stirring up faction, and that the prince of the peace's party was formidable in Spain. We trust, however, that the Patriots will ultimately succeed over Bonaparte and the prince of "The news from Oporto is unfavorable. The party there in opposition to the Regency is very strong, and general Berresford had meditated in vain. The French are at Valladolid."

Another letter, same date.

"This afternoon, at three o'clock, the Bonne Citovenne sloop of war, capt. Thompson, arrived from Corunna, from whence she sailed on Saturday last, bringing accounts from general Blake's army up to the 24th ult.

"The dispatches she has brought will be found to relate to several most dreadful actions between the armies of marshal Nev and general Blake. The marquis Romana's troops (from the Baltic) by advancing too far ahead of gen. Blake's army, were severely defeated; one of the regiments of Catalonia has been cut to pieces.

obstinate and desperate. The marquis of Romana's cavalry was preserved. In the last attack. Blake repulsed the French with considerable loss. He is now at Cinta, about 40 miles north of St. Andero, with 25,000 men. The communication between them and the centre army, under Castanes is cut off, the French army being between them, whose head quarters are at Valladolid. There are many fears for the safety of the centre army. The prince of peace's party in Spain is very strong, more so than was expected or thought of; and the patriotic cause looks despending. Sir David Baird was at Astorga with his army, and sir John Moore at Salamanca. They have not been engaged. It is thought to be Bonaparte's intention to prevent, if possible, the joining of the different forces into one body.

The cause of the Spaniards is not considered an hopeless one; but the spirit of patriotism has drooped very much.

"In the Bonne Citovenne came passenger Capt. Gage, of the Royal Artillery, with dispatches from sir Robert Wilson, at Oporto. His dispatches are not so favorable as could be wished. The party against the Provisional Government is very strong and turbulent. Sir Robert had clothed. armed and trained 2000 Portuguese, and formed them into a battalion. There were three British regiments there."

In addition to the above, we have to state, that this day an officer from Oporto arrived in Downing street, with dispatches. He came over in the Bonne Citoyenne. I + touched at Corunna on his passage home and sailed again from that place on the morning of the 26th ult. At that time no news of importance had been received there of a subsequent date to that which we yesterday communicated. After quitting Corunna, the Bonne Citoyenne fell in with the Minerva frigate, which had been cruizing to the eastward, the capt. of which stated, that he had received intelligence that the French had attacked the Marquis de la Rowhich he had taken at Vincente de la Barquera, that the battle was most obstinately contested, but at length the French were defea ed with very great loss, and the Spanish army were in consequence of this suc- Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they that the French had been repulsed from Signal and Signal and Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they that the French had been repulsed from Signal and Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they that the French had been repulsed from Signal and Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they that the French had been repulsed from Signal and Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they that the French had been repulsed from Signal and Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they that the French had been repulsed from Signal and Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they that the French had been repulsed from Signal and Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they that the French had been repulsed from Signal and Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they that the French had been repulsed from Signal and Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they that the French had been repulsed from Signal and Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they that the French had been repulsed from Signal and Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they had been repulsed from Signal and Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they had been repulsed from Signal and Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they had been repulsed from Signal and Palencia, however, and the signal and the sig cess, about to advance.

ligence communicated by Capt. Hawkins, of the Minerva. It certainly is not to be considered as official, but it appears to be highly probable. The position at St. Vincente de la Barquera, is an extremely strong one, and the French army must have been very much weakened by the numerous sauguinary conflicts in which it has been en-

The following interesting private communication has been transmitted to us:

CORUNNA, Nov. 25. All the intelligence which has lately reached us is contradictory and inconsistent; hopes and fears alternately have their dominion.

This letter is sent off with great dispatch, and is consequently brief in observation .-Yesterday arrived here two Spanish frigates from St. Andero, and previously some English vessels from the same port. The accounts they bring are not distinct. These vessels left St. Andero on the 14th, from the news of gen. Blake's defeat. The arrival of the French was then hourly expected; and the Spanish frigates were therefore filled with wounded, who had been brought from Reynosa, and preparations were made to blow up the powder magazines, spike the cannon, &c. Some accounts even state, that the report of an explosion at St. Andero was heard while the vessels were under weigh. Letters from Castile mention, that Castanos had defeated a body of the French; but this report still rests on light authority, and is too long unconfirmed to claim much credit. Yet another circumstance adds to our confidence here: letters from Madrid conveyed by the last mail, mention the arrival of good news as the post was departing.-The intelligence from these different sources require to be connected, in order to form a good opinion of what is probably occurring. One thing is certain, that the public apprehension has decreased. The enemy, it is ascertained, is in Old Castile, and the transmission of intelligence is unsafe, from the possibility of being intercepted by detached parties of the enemy; but the regular post continues to proceed. Blake's army has sustained some defeats, but they are not of a very alarming, though of a distressing nature. There has been no surrender of any large body-a great superiority of force has won battles-but the vanquished have invariably fallen bravely, and their resistance has been such, that it is not too much to say, that the enemy's victories, if they are all bought as dearly, will secure "The fighting on both sides was most the independence of Spain. Still there is much reason for sorrow and regret. The fate of none is more deplored than of a strong division of the brave army of the North-these suffered heavily. The regiment of Catalonia was offered quarter by the enemy, but refused it, and every man of 1700 died voluntarily and glorionsly, and in his death, heaping destruction upon his enemies. The dismounted cavalry of the same troops were prevented from engaging by want of horses; but the marquis of Romana has placed all the horses of the province in a state of requisition. The fresh troops of Gallicia fought furiously and like veterans. Their general having been severely wounded in the foot, rode along the lines, exhorting and animating the troops to vengeance, and refused to permit the dressing of his wound until they had sworn, as > of the Spanish frigates. It was understood at St. Andero, that general Blake was in superior force to the enemy, and would defend the town; for the marquis of Romana, though the command had devolved upon him by seniority, had refused to supereede gen. Blake.

he had done, to die for their liberties and their country. His exhortation had an irresistible effect upon his soldiers. This brave officer died afterwards on board one

Of the strength of that army now, we are without precise information. Some represent it to be 28,000 strong; this, it is suspected, is an exaggeration of its actual strength. It is certain that the army has moved towards Leon; which, though a retreat, with respect to the Spanish frontier, is an advantageous measure in reference to the safety of Gallicia, as well as its advantage in co-operating with the British armies. No apprehension is entertained for the safety of the British troops.

The last letters from Madrid are not in the expression of alarm. The Spanish troops have been successful almost every where but in Biscay and Gallicia; and a great part of the army of Estremadura, mana and gen. Blake in the strong position which it was considered had been destroyed ' at Burgos, has escaped, though in a destitute state, to Segovia.

CORK, Dreit. The arrival of the deficient English main and those regularly due to the 2d inches -of French and Dutch papers to the or and 26th ult. and of Spanish papers and le. ters to the 27th, supply us with a mass of intelligence from various parts of Europe.

The accounts from Spain are rendered peculiarly interesting by the circulation former statements of contradictory impa and not founded in any positive knowled of what they represented as facts. T doubt and suspicion with which most of them were received are justified by them ture of the communications recently trans mitted from Spain, for they disagree will every thing which had been given to he public, even through the medium of in David Baird's army, or by the Mediate The occurrences of the war in the North of Spain, as they are now represented, an summarily what follows:

It will be recollected, that on the state October, gen. Blake was attacked by a late French force near Durango, and after, brave and obstinate resistance compelled a tall back upon Bilboa, and subsequents, upon Navas By this success of the enemy two divisions of his army were separate from the body he commanded, and her solved to endeavor to effect a junction with them. With this intention on the 5th, le advanced and attacked a strong column of the enemy, which he defeated and drove beyond Valmaseda. On the 7th he amin attacked them, but from some want of prompt co-operation in the centre division of his army was sharply engaged and at unsuccessfully. On the 10th the Frem renewed their attack, and with great sun riority in number. This was a sanguing conflict, and maintained on both sides du. ing the day. It terminated favorable in Blake. The arrival of reinforcements enbled the French to resume offensive fighting on the 11th, and the Spaniards were a length compelled to give way to this inco. sancy of attack with augmented number-They were broken and thrown into confasion. The occupation of some elevated ground to the line of retreat gave the enemy such an advantage, as to compel Blake to seek his security by the sacrifice of patol his cannon and baggage. He, however, succeeded in gaining Revnosa with whotever he could collect of his dispersed forces. His adversary gave him no respite in this post, and an immediate attack upon it forced him to retreat to Villa Vicienza This last movement was perilous, and displayed the consummate ability of general Blake, and the unsubdued bravery of hi reduced army.

Perhaps the history of any time does not supply instances of greater intrepidity and determination in battle, and of more endurance and constancy under every kind of hardship and privation than Blake's army evinced during this unremitting wariate. The soldiers of this very great man, inspired by his example, and by the cause of their country, fought without clothes, shoes or stockings, literally almost naked, exposed to all the severity of the weather in the condition. They had not for several days more food than would just sustain natureand before the accumulated pressure, d want, fatigue and a powerful enemy, they at last gave way. Since the French rue! began his career of tyranny, he has not had such adversaries to contend with as this band of heroes - and if we judge from what they have performed, such he is likely still to find in Spain. We are compelled to close those observations by merely stating, that the part of gen. Blake's army which could not retreat to St. Vincent with the marquis de Romano were collecting at Leon, and with some augmentation of new levis made a force of nearly 20,000. Of the Bilboa army, the last accounts are contradictory. By one statement, gen Moore and Baird were hastening from Ar torga and Salamanca, to their point of june tion at Zamora-and another, but less cree ditable, describes them as falling back, one upon Villa Vicinsa in Asturias, and the other upon Tralos Muntes in Portugal

DESPERATE NAVAL ACTION .- It was stated in our naval column, on Tuesday lest, that of the French naval force in L'Orient, two frigates had hanled further out than the rest, apparently ready for a push, as it was supposed, for the W. indies, and that the Amethyst frigate was left to watch them. On Thursday last one of the French frigates made the experted push, and the Amethyst fell in with intengaged her, about three leagues from L'Orient. They fought, muzzle to muzzle, from seven o'clock in the evening until half-net ten, when the enemy struck her colours, after having had her Captain and two Lieutenants killed, and 200 and 50 tilled and wounded. The Amethyst is said to have had a Lieutenant of Marines and 19 men killed, and 50 wounded. She mounts only 38 guns, the Thetis carries 44. The prize has arrived at Plymouth, under convoy of the Shannon, and the Amethyst was following them into that port. The enemy, besides her complement of men, had 100 soldiers on board, of whom 14 only survived. She was laden with 1000 barrels of flour and a battering train, destined for Martinique. This is one of the most desperate actions that has been fought during the war. The gallant captain Seymour, of the Amethyst, was first lieut of the Marlborough, in the glorious action of the first of June, in which e lost his right arm.

Wethis day resume our extracts from the Paris papers to the twelfth inst. received yesterday. Among them is the annual exposition of the state of the French empire, laid before the legislative body. Its interest and importance are not in proportion to its length; there are only a few points that can engage the English reader. It confesses that Austria had assumed a warlike attitude; but it boasts that she has been induced to forego all resistince to the views of Bonaparte; and we are gain threatened with invasion from Boulogne ingland having sent off her army to the Con-

At a late hour last night a messenger arrived at the foreign office, with dispatches from the French minister for foreign affairs. He was the bearer of the answer to the dispatches one ministry, in reply to the delusive overtures of Bonaparte, and which was lately sent on to Paris in the care of Mr. Shaw. The rench messenger landed at Dover yesterday bout noon, from a flag of truce which had conveyed him from Boulogne. The nature of the communication brought by him has not publickly transpired; but we believe the correspondence may now be considered as bro't nearly to a close.

LONDON, Dec. 4. MOST IMPORTANT INTELLIGENCE FROM SPAIN.

Defeat of the French-passage of the Ebro, and taking of Caparosso, by the Spanish Centre Army - Retreat of the French di vision opposed to General Blake's army Our information as to General Blake's orce [now commanded by the Marquis cefomana] may be deemed official, as far as it oes, being derived from a statement which antain Thompson of the Bonne Citoyenne, eived from Captain Hawkins, of the Mi-That relative to the central army this upon the authority of private communications from Madrid, which is furnished by a Spanish gentleman of great respectability, low resident in that capital. In this corresondence, which will be read with much interest, will be found the first accounts of oherations of the Spanish army of the centre. These, it appears, have been attended with complete success; the passage of the Ehro has been forced at three points, and the French position of Caparrosso, with the heights around it, taken — The final esult of this general action is not yet morn.—The postscript of the last letter Madrid informs us, that the fighting promitted on the 13th, when a Courier who brought the intelligence, the substance of which we have stated, left the army. But circumstances have occurred which render it committee of the whole house to whom was ! highly probable that the army of the centre has obtained a decisive victory. One of these is a fact stated in the following Bulletin, which was circulated on Friday from the Government offices, as an account of the intelligence received by the Bonne Citoyenne sloop of war, which left Corunna on Saturday last, and arrived at Portsmouth.

" The Bonne Choyenne spoke the Minerva, which had been cruising off St. Andero .-By her she was informed, that on the nineteenth the French had entered St. Vincent de la Borquero, and that the Spaniards had retreated after a sharp contest. On the twenty lowance of half pay for life, &c. Said petififth a fresh battle is said to have taken place, tions were referred to the committee of and the accounts were, that, at the close of it, claims. the Marquis de Romana was driving the French before him.

French were at Valladolid in great force."

Though the information given in this Bul- lution: letin is very scanty; yet if after several days fighting, the Spanish army of the centre, should have routed the French in Navarre, M. Ney would then be obliged to abandon all the advantages he had gained over the army of commanders and crews of merchant vessels Gallicia, and the French at Burgos would probably be cut off, as they are reported to have tizen or citizens thereof, to oppose and debeen by some of our letters. As the Marquis fend against any search, restraint or seizure of Romana's artillery is, however, stated in which shall be attempted upon such vessel, the Spanish papers to have been removed to or upon any other vessel owned as aforesaid has obtained to be important, otherwise than vessel sailing under French or British coshowing the diminution of that part of the c- lers, or acting, or pretending to act, by or nemy's force which had been opposed to him, under the authority of the French or Brithe constancy of his troops, and his opportu- tish governments; and to repel by force any nity for moving towards the point, at which sir assault or hostility which shall be made or John Moore and sir David Baird would add thirty thousand men to his force; of which junction having been effected we have not a doubt.

T is with pleasure we inform the public. I that we yesterday received proposals announcing intentions of publishing a work which must be of incalculable advantage to all classes. It will be a valuable Note Book to the Historian, enabling him to systematize his ideas, and also afford readers whose time or means may be contracted, interesting compendium of the great outlines of the history of all nations to the present time This work is entitled " A Compend of History," and comes highly recommended to the public. by Dr. Samuel Smith, President of Princeton College, James Abercrombie, Philadelphia, John Doubty, President of the Morris Academy, New Jersey, and other characters of celebrity who have inspected the manuscript. Some very respectable patronage is already given this effort of American genius, and we recommend it to our readers as being worthy of their support.
